

Tips and tricks for webcam

Your first time on cam

Log on as much as you can

"Is it busy online?"

Stick with it!!

Tips £

Consistency

Personality

Confidence

Your first time on cam

. We've all been there, we all started somewhere. Everyone is nervous for their first time. The best advice I can give you is to simply, just do it. Just log in and go for it. Don't leave it too long, just jump on and get that first call over and done with. I promise you, after your first few calls you will love it. You'll be like "Why was I even nervous?!"

. Make sure you have read through all the training, several times. This is like every other job where you must train before you go live. You obviously learn on the job too, but you will not be able to navigate the site and therefore cam successfully without completely the training. Don't forget; We offer 1-1 training, so if you are ever struggling, book in with either myself (your agent) or one of the managers.

. I always treat me getting on cam as if I'm getting ready for a night out; Put the tunes on (we have a boss ass independent woman playlist on Spotify I can link you to!), have a drink; whether that's a wine, squash, tea etc! Enjoy the process, take your time doing your makeup, hair etc. Put something on that you feel good in. It does not have to be underwear or something massively "sexy" wear whatever makes you feel good! Remember; You have a group chat of 200+ hype women in! if you ever feel down, pop a pic of you in and we'll boost you up, and motivate you to get on!

Log on as much as you can

It is key at the start of webcamming to get online as much as possible. You need to work out which times suit you best. You may find that the evenings are busier for you, however every model is different. Some will find they will do better in the day and some better in the evenings or the graveyard shift! It is crucial that you log in as much as possible even if you're sitting in background to work out your busier and less busier times.

"Is it busy online?"

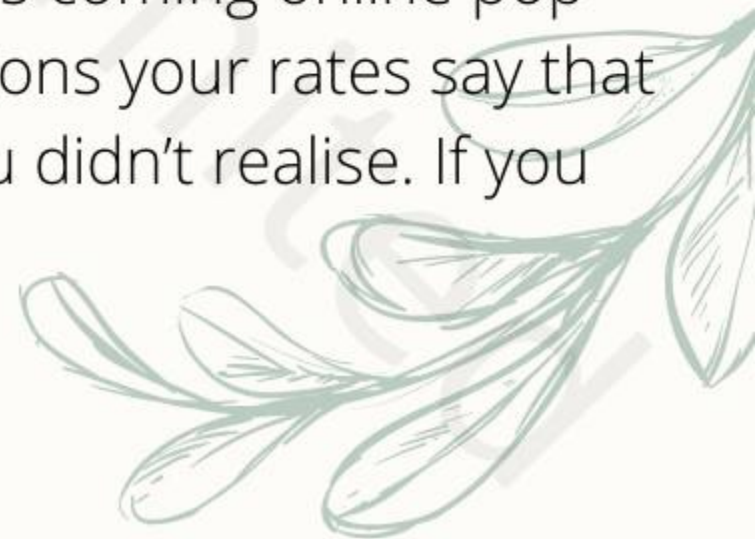

This is a pet peeve! There is not away to answer this because of the above. Every girl is different, every guy wants something different. The best way to gauge if it is busy for you online is to log in and find out for yourself.

Stick with it!!

There are always going to be busy and less busy times. If you are less busy (don't say the Q word, and jinx it (cough Quiet cough)) then try these ideas:

1. Change your profile photo – make sure it is eye catching or bright colours. Try a smiley selfie. I have personally found men love a beaming smile! You can also try a normal / going out photo. Personally, I have found clients love to see the real you, it shows you have personality. Helps with the fantasy!
2. Lower your price per minute. I am always changing my price per minute around to suit how busy I am! When I am quiet, I lower my rate and when I'm busy I increase it. Remember the client must pay VAT so they are charged around 20% per minute more than you set them at. Try and not go above 3 credits for a private and 2 for a group. TOP TIP If you know a regular client is coming online pop your rates up ever so slightly. If anyone questions your rates say that your agent sets or has changed them, and you didn't realise. If you tick the guy's boxes, he will pay for you!

Confidence

Although we cannot train you to be confident, and everyone is super nervous at the start; which is totally normal! Be confident – You've already done the most amazing thing by having the confidence to sign up. You are amazing! You are unique, your best asset is that you are you. Let your confidence shine through. If in doubt, blag it! Use the fact they don't know you in real life to your advantage.

Consistency.

I personally think this is the most important “tip” I can give. So many models start, and smash it in their first night, or first week. This is because clients get a notification that there is a new starter. Clients love a newbie, they see you as “fresh meet” a lot of them pry on your naivety (another reason it’s fab to be with an agency and have training, is to know how to deal with these initial calls) Like stated above, this is another massive reason to get on and stay on as much as possible, reap the benefits of being “New”. What I have found is models will smash it in their first week, and then suddenly not cam for a few weeks, meaning, when they then log back in, they complain they are less busy. This is because you are no longer classed as “New” and didn’t spend the time building up regulars. It is key to when you start to log in as much as humanly possible.

Personality

Although these clients do not know “you” it is important to let a personality shine through. This doesn't necessarily you, and your personality. The best part about being a webcam model is you can be whoever you want to be! See it as an altar ego. Have fun with it. Remember you are in control; you can tell them whatever you want. This is YOUR safe space, and you shouldn't ever do anything you are not comfortable with.

Tips! £££

. Don't be afraid to ask for tips. A client can tip in you any mode! Free, Group or Private. For example, if they ask to see what your wearing ask them for a tip! If they want, you to change and outfit or use certain things in a private but still have you in free ask them to tip you and you'd be more than happy to get ready for them. Again, if they want to 'spend time with you' they will spend on you! This also means if they don't end up following through you've made a little something for nothing.

. If a client has just taken you into a group or private and they want, you to get naked then say you will happily take an item of clothing off for each tip!

. There is also no reason why you can't ask for a tip if they want sounds or C2C.

. If they suggest you doing something that you perhaps don't normally do, or haven't done, or you don't feel like doing it. You can pretend that you haven't done it before, act nervous and naive, some clients like this look. Say to them you "I don't normally do this, but if you tip me, I will try for you"

